

Does Your Child Have A High Social IQ?

Answer the questions below to find out.

	Yes	No
1. Does your child easily approach a new group of children?	Yes	No
2. Does your child wait for a pause in a conversation to speak?	Yes	No
3. Does your child look at others directly in the eyes when speaking?	Yes	No
4. Does your child listen when spoken to?	Yes	No
5. Are your child's statements/questions related to the topic of conversation?	Yes	No
6. Is your child able to read the body language and facial expressions of others?	Yes	No
7. Does your child stop when asked by a peer to stop?	Yes	No
8. Is your child able to go with the flow of others?	Yes	No
9. Does your child initiate social activities with peers?	Yes	No
10. Does your child react calmly to social slights and ribbing from peers?	Yes	No
11. Does your child pay attention to the feelings of others?	Yes	No

If you answered "yes" to most of the questions above, it is likely you have a child with a high social IQ. If you have answered "no," your child may need help learning the skills necessary to make and keep friends. Children who make and keep friends easily are more likely to have happy and successful lives.

If your child needs help making and keeping friends, please call us at (703) 876-8480 Ext. 10